Hindi Rock

Hindi

As lead singer of Junoon, Ali Azmat fronted the largest rock band in South Asia. He joined the band at its inception in 1990. The 10 albums they released between 1990 and 2003 sold 20 million albums worldwide. In 1998, Ali and Junoon took Pakistan and India by storm with the hit single “Sayonee” from their tremendously successful fourth album “Azadi”. Ali also appeared in the VHI News Special Islamabad Rock City, a documentary on Junoon hosted by Susan Sarandon. In 2002, Ali was nominated for an Emmy award.

In 2003 Ali left Junoon to start his solo career. His first solo album “Social Circus” was released in March 2005. Social Circus has received much critical acclaim, winning 13 awards in Pakistan this year including Best album, Best producer, and Best singer for “Na Re Na”, and best new video. Ali was also nominated for Best Sound Track and Best Song for his single “Garaj Baras” for the Indian hit “Paap” by Pooja Bhatt at the Sahara Awards London.

Ali Azmat comes aboard ArtistAloud.com showcasing music that is true to his style and yet very global.

Speaking about the songs Ali has on ArtistAloud.com he says, “This was probably the easiest album I've done. Songs came out, I mean they happened. And I didn't force anything. We've had fun making this album and I hope that the users would equally enjoy hearing them.”

Ali Azmat has been hand picked by ArtistAloud.com to join a group of passionate individuals showcasing music that is close to their heart.
