Parikrama is one of the oldest rock groups in India. They recently created a great impact by having Salf Ali Khan perform with them. From six playing members to ten at times, the band often fuses Indian classical music instruments like mridangam, tabla and flute with conventional instruments like guitar, drums and keyboards.

Since 18 years and thousands of live, commercial concerts and a humble 2 million GUESTBOOK entries on their website, Parikrama has recently released a few more originals like the Lord of the Rings-inspired "Am I Dreaming", "Tears of the Wizard" and "In the Middle".

One of Parikrama's songs on ArtistAloud.com "But It Rained" is their way to talk about the society and its evils and how can we make a change as a human being.

Speaking on why ArtistAloud.com was the obvious way forward for the band, Subir Malik of Parikrama says, "It's a very good platform as we getting so many different kinds of bands, different kinds of musicians together and I think it's probably one of the biggest efforts by any company to sell music digitally and still market it in a good way!"

Parikrama have been hand picked by ArtistAloud.com to join a group of passionate individuals showcasing music that is close to their heart.
